JUDICIAL.

Proceedings of the High Court of Judicature at Madras 30th October 1867.

Read letter No. 443, dated 20th September 1867, from the Magistrate of South Arcot, forwarding, under Section 404 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, a letter from his Acting Head Assistant, in which that officer questions the competency of the Session Court to record an opinion upon the evidence adduced in a criminal case tried and convicted by the magistracy, unless the court is prepared at the same time to refer the case under Section 434 of the Code for the orders of the High Court.

The High Court are, of course, of opinion that a case of no evidence is a case for reference, but taking the whole of the proceedings of the Court of Session in this case together, insufficiency, and not utter absence, of evidence, is clearly what is meant, and the Judges are by no means prepared to say that the non-mention of the power in the Criminal Procedure Code is to bar a Session Judge from remarking upon the proceedings of magistrates.

2. The High Court are however of opinion that, especially in such a matter as the weight of evidence and more especially in a case subject to appeal, the Court of Session should be peculiarly sparing in such remarks and very guarded in the mode of expressing them.

Acting Registrar, Appellate Side.
